Property	Content
title	Introduction
description	Motivation I've noticed that there are a lot of friendly 'shell access' exchange deals between network operators. This makes it easier for parties to debug network issues and troubleshoot 'from the outside'. A point of view outside your network is absolutely essential, seeing what others see is a useful thing with a variety of network problems. Well known examples are 'it works for even numbered ip address, but not for odd numbered ip address via this and this route'.
