- [H3] Scam alert. There is an online Sphynx site that pretends to be a legitimate breeder from Darwin. They get people to transfer $2000+ and then disappear. I have had calls from two people who have been victims. Please ask your breeder the name of their registering organization and then call that body to check the breeder really exists. For example, I am registered with the Feline Control Council of Queensland (FCCQ). Anyone can check with them that I am a registered breeder. Please be careful. These criminals are breaking hearts. Check your breeder is registered in Australia. There are not many kittens around at the moment so please be patient. I don't have any right now but I am happy to offer advice if needed. Jocene.

- [H3] Beware of pedigree scams. - I was recently asked by a new breeder if I wanted to swap an entire girl for what looked like a nice, little, tortie kitten, which this very inexperienced breeder had in her first litter. Occasionally, if a new breeder seems very ethical and keen to focus on the animals' welfare, I will mentor new breeders. However, when she sent the pedigrees of the parents, it was clear to any experienced breeder that those were not the parents of this kitten. The tortie colour is genetically linked to the colours of the parents, and what she was claiming was genetically impossible. Any reputable cat association will de-register a breeder for such a breach of trust. Make sure your breeder is someone who is ethical, truthful and has shown cats, as these are the ones who care about improving the breed and keeping authentic pedigrees. We do not want to support dishonest breeders who just want to sell kittens but will not take the time to learn about the breed and care for the animals' mental
